Highlights of the report include:

- The average apartment price reached a record $1,818,057 in Manhattan last year, an 8% increase from 2014.
- A 41% jump in new development activity helped push this figure higher, as new developments typically sell for more than resale apartments as they tend to be larger and have more amenities.
- The average price for just resale apartments rose 4% to $1,535,570, while the average new development price fell 2% to $3,043,168.
- Total sales were virtually unchanged from 2014, with 14,004 closings reported.
- The median price for all apartments rose 9% last year, reaching a record $999,395.
- Downtown, south of 14th Street, posted the largest increase in average price in 2015 (28%), followed by Midtown East (19%). Both areas had sharp increases in new development activity last year.
- While the Midtown West average price fell 21% in 2015, this was due to closings at One57 inflating the 2014 data.
- Midtown West had 27% more sales than during 2014, the highest increase in sales in our report.
